Convoi is a unique company that specialises 100% in relocations. But what exactly do we offer?

Suppose you need to move a printing press weighing dozens of tons. We have also moved entire warehouses with no fewer than 100,000 different product items, as well as entire production lines, including all electro-technical and mechanical connections. It's all in a day's work for Convoi!

Industrial relocations

A combination of expertise, analytical skills, engineering, project management, professionalism and modern equipment means that Convoi is your partner par excellence when it comes to industrial relocations. Convoi takes care of all internal and external transport on a national and international scale, from individual machine transfers to full industrial relocations of complex production facilities – and within the tightest of time frames.

In order to meet the requirements of the marketplace, Convoi has developed a number of specialisations that include the fields of electrical, mechanical and civil engineering.

We also have teams of experienced planners, account managers, project managers and technicians working on a wide range of projects every day.

Professionals and professional equipment

Convoi is proud of the performance delivered across the world each and every day by its well-qualified and experienced professionals. Convoi also owns an extensive fleet of highly specialised equipment that includes hoisting systems, electric cranes, special trucks and self-levelling trucks. All of our hoisting equipment and tools are tested and inspected regularly, which means we can always guarantee their safety. The same applies to all electric equipment we use.

Automotive

Convoi is often asked to assist in the phasing-out and phasing-in of complete production lines for the car manufacturing industry. This often entails extensive and complex operations that must be carried out under extreme time pressure. This work can only take place with meticulous planning and according to a rigorous timetable. Nothing can be left to chance. At Convoi, we always respect deadlines. Whether it involves the relocation of welding or spraying robots, turntables, control units or transfer lines, every industrial relocation is unique and can only be successful with the ideal combination of specialist expertise and experience.

Whatever your requirements, when you choose Convoi, you can: “Consider it done!”
